THE INVINCIBLES.

There once upon a time knights full of mettle and merit, Who joined in a league and maintained it with spirit, No task was so hard it could be better than this, And one was I-can and the other I-will.

I-can was tall, little-all wit, wisdom and grace, With a slightly superior smile on his face; I-will was short, stout, red-haired, bald, backed and bold—

A terrible fellow where once he took hold, I-will by himself, had been boastful and steady, But treacherous I-can kept him prudent and true.

While truly this latter, unyoked from his brother, I fear had accomplished much less than the other, But take them together—where'er they might go, Doubts, dangers and obstacles vanished like snow.

From plucky Tooley to strong-armed Edgar, No could withstand the invincible pair, And surely without them the world would stand still.

For masters of Fate are I-can and I-will, As you'll see, ending at a quick tomorrow morning.

Would Not Suffer So Again for Fifty Times Its Price.

I awoke last night with seven pains in my stomach. I never felt so badly in all my life. When I came down to work this morning I felt so weak I could hardly work. I went to Miller & McCurdy's drug store and they recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I took like magic and one dose fixed me all right. It certainly is the finest thing I ever used for stomach trouble. I shall not be without it in my home hereafter, for I should not care to endure the sufferings of last night again for fifty times its price.—G. H. WILSON, Livermore, N. Y.

FLOTSAM-JETSAM-LIGAN!

NEWLY NOTED FROM NATURE'S GREAT HIGHWAY.

The Bonanza will be down tonight from Pomeroy.

The Virginia will be down tomorrow night from Pittsburgh.

The Henry M. Stanley will be the boat up tonight for Kanawha river.

The rivers at Westport were falling yesterday, with no prospect of a rise.

All the Big Steamers have gone to the bank account of the bed of the river being too near the top of the water.

The E. A. Woodruff, the U. S. Snagboat, after removing several obstructions, came this city, passed on to Cincinnati. She has been kept busy up the river for several weeks past.

President Ludley of the Louisville and Cincinnati Packet Company, has not promulgated an order, but has made it plain to understand that at least one of the regular pilots of boats in his line must remain on duty while in port. This new feature, or rather, departure, was brought into existence by reason of a recent decision in admiralty against a steamer because there was no regular pilot on the vessel, even though she was tied fast to her dock.

Tuesday night of last week when the steamer Henry M. Stanley was coming up, a bucket came loose from the wheel and went hurtling overboard, tearing her bucket half out and breaking into pieces.

The bucket was broken into pieces, the department, Susan Jones, and came within an inch of killing her, and as it was nearly daylight, her death. The bucket was finally came loose and the bucket dropped, or no telling what would have happened. The steamerboatmen have been making a great fuss lately about the condition of affairs at Lock No. 3, better known as the "Trap," on the Ohio river. The Government is just beginning to build a lock at that place, and the contractors have driven a large number of piles down the river, and have greatly obstructed the river by the temporary structure. The piling extends down the river so far that steamboats can scarcely get past the obstructions without going hard against the bar directly below. Major Hixby, United States Engineer in charge of the improvements of the Ohio river, advertised for bids some time ago for the removal of this bar, but the bids were too high and were rejected. Recently, however, a contract was entered into with C. J. Jette & Co. of Pittsburgh to dredge away the troublesome bar below the new lock, and the work is now being done. Major Hixby, in speaking of the improvement at the trap, said that it is his intention to have a long row of piling driven along the line of the present lock at that place, and have them sheeted with oak. This will make a guide wall for the descending towboats, and they will be able to keep farther away from the obstructions at the trap, and thus be able to have a long row of piling driven along the line of the present lock at that place, and have them sheeted with oak.
